

DRUMS – Level 6

Overview

Candidates are free to choose their drum repertoire from any popular genre*. RSL recognises that some contemporary styles containing drum parts would not necessarily stretch candidates' techniques to the required Level 6. Therefore, in addition to pre-existing works/styles which meet the criteria in original form, candidates are encouraged to arrange, compose, transcribe or embellish pre-existing material to bring up to a level equating to Level 6, in accordance with the criteria set out below.

* Popular genres would in general terms exclude any works that were predominantly classical in approach. There are of course some popular works which draw on classical influence. These would still be regarded as fit for purpose in the popular genre, and therefore suitable for presentation in the RSL diplomas.

All repertoire presented needs to be fully notated.

Candidates are also advised to research Grade 8 pieces/free choice piece criteria and Level 4 free choice piece criteria as the platform on which to graduate to Level 6 content. For additional context, it is worth noting Level 6 equates in standard to the final year of a Music Performance Degree course.

Repertoire Components

There are three components to the performance criteria at Level 6. They are all compulsory.

Advanced Technical Criteria

Candidates are required to perform for 14-17 minutes in order to demonstrate the advanced technical skills and requirements below. Any number of pieces can be performed so long they remain within this time range. The skills do not need to be demonstrated in each piece, so long as they are demonstrated overall.

Advanced Development Criteria

Candidates are required to perform two additional pieces, each 4-6 minutes long, to include extended line development for a minimum of 32 bars within each piece.

Advanced Solo Criteria

Candidates are required to perform one further piece, 3-5 minutes long, to include a solo for a minimum of 48 bars.

Criteria Requirements

The following requirements are compulsory when compiling a Level 6 Drum programme:

- 1) Predominance of four way co-ordination / independence incorporating numerous, varied, mixed and an obviously diverse range of subdivisions incorporating regular syncopation and complex rhythmic values. These will comprise a combination of derivatives such as duplet, triplet, quadruplet, quintuplet, sextuplet, groupings up to 1/32 notes, all with associated rests.
- 2) Predominance of simple, compound and a minimum of four odd time signatures.
- 3) Demonstration of fundamental metric modulation.
- 4) Mastery of the full extent of drum kit, including as a minimum open and closed hi hat, hi hat foot, snare, bass drum, multiple crash cymbals, ride cymbal, floor tom, high tom, medium tom.
- 5) Regular combination of different sticks, brushes, rods or mallets (sweeps and strokes) including repeated quick changes during a minimum of one piece.

Within this compulsory framework, candidates must demonstrate and include where stylistically appropriate a predominance of the following elements:

- Single/double stroke rolls
- Mixed paradiddles
- Press/buzz strokes
- Flam based/hybrid rudiments
- Multiple note strokes (e.g. Moeller, Gladstone)
- Multiple bass pedal notes (e.g. Slide and heel/toe)
- Varied grip options (e.g. Traditional and matched options)
- Linear and layered fills and grooves
- Hand/foot ostinato patterns
- Rhythmic modulation/beat displacement
- Wide dynamic range: ppp-fff, numerous changes over the programme
- Accumulated elementary techniques, (e.g. flams, rim shots, ghost notes, grace notes, accents).

Focus on a small number of criteria or a single technique would be acceptable in a single piece, but obvious demonstration of a wide combination of the criteria shown is required over the course of the whole programme.

Additional techniques/devices would also be acceptable, but need to be in addition to the above.

Backing Track and Performing Unaccompanied

Technical

Candidates must perform the technical pieces to a backing track.
Own accompaniment/unaccompanied or a cappella pieces would be acceptable instead of the backing track, up to five minutes maximum.
Other musicians can be used as the backing track*

Development

Candidates must perform both development pieces, including the development part itself within the pieces, to a backing track. Other musicians can be used as the backing track.

Solo

Candidates must perform the solo piece to a backing track.
Other musicians can be used as the backing track.
The solo part itself within the piece may be unaccompanied.

* Other musicians can play for 8-10mins overall.

Development and Soloing

- The development and solo parts need to incorporate a predominance of the Advanced Technical content above.
- The remainder of the piece does not need to be Level 6. This maximises the repertoire choice/theme possibilities, and offers the opportunity for contrast/space on which to develop, shape and intensify the personalised content. All such content can be prepared in advance, but needs to be individually constructed.
- The development and solo parts would need to be in keeping with the style of the pieces chosen and will require heightened rhythmic awareness, absolute accuracy and a very high degree of appropriate/stylistic communication of any simpler material.
- Candidates are free to choose where to play the development and solo parts. However, in all cases, it needs to be a continuous number of bars, not a number of smaller bars, which in total add up to the stipulated total number.

Tempo

There are no tempo requirements stipulated. Decisions related to speed need to ensure stylistic and musical appropriateness in achieving the criteria above at Level 6.
